

Saucy Mama Hot Wing Sauce, Creamy Chipotle Dressing Earn Top Nods from Scovie Awards Awards Recognize Nation's Best Spicy Foods

Pendleton, Ore. (October 26, 2011) – It's becoming increasingly evident that Saucy Mama not only can stand the heat; she also can dish it out to major accolades. The Scovie Awards – which recognize achievements in spicy food – has bestowed the Oregon-based company with two medals for the 2012 competition, for its Hot Wing Sauce and its Sante Fe Creamy Chipotle dressing. Last year, Saucy Mama's Creamy Horseradish earned the Scovie Awards Grand Prize, beating more than 600 fiery submissions.

Crafted by Barhyte Foods' own Suzie "Saucy Mama" Barhyte, the popular Saucy Mama Hot Wing Sauce scored a second-place finish from this year's Scovie Awards, in its Traditional Hot category, while newcomer Saucy Mama Sante Fe Creamy Chipotle dressing earned a third-place medal in the dressing category.

Designed to perfectly complement chicken and buffalo wings, Saucy Mama Hot Wing Sauce strikes a complicated balance between heat and rich creaminess, with a consistency that adheres to food without overpowering it. A perennial favorite in Saucy Mama's food blogger contests, it also has proven versatile, providing a delightful spice to wedge salads, fried wontons, meatballs and even baked chickpeas.

Santa Fe Creamy Chipotle Marinade is Saucy Mama's Tex-Mex combination of ranch-style dressing with spices and sizzle from south of the border. This marinade works beautifully with chicken and shrimp dishes, and serves as an inspired topping for tacos and other Mexican dishes.

Both Saucy Mama Hot Wing Sauce (MSRP: $6.00 / 12 oz.) and Saucy Mama Sante Fe Creamy Chipotle Dressing (MSRP: $6.00 / 12 oz.) are gluten- and wheat-free and are available through specialty food stores as well as through Amazon.com and other fine online retailers.
