

SAUCY MAMA STRIPS (INGREDIENTS) BARE

Pendleton, Ore. (November 1, 2011) – Saucy Mama is stripping – her ingredients, that is – to reveal an updated line of condiments that is free of artificial preservatives, colors, flavors, sweeteners or hydrogenated fats. The gourmet food manufacturer’s commitment to using sustainable, local and natural ingredients whenever possible also recently contracted with a local farmer to source mustard seeds just 16 miles from its eastern Oregon production facility, and committed to using wind energy to power a percentage of its headquarters.

“Our customers are savvy shoppers who are seeking whole, natural and sustainable foods to bring to their family table,” explains Chris Barhyte, CEO of Saucy Mama’s parent company, Barhyte Specialty Foods. “We take the term ‘all natural’ seriously; it’s not just a marketing gimmick. We’re committed to making Saucy Mama mustards, marinades and other condiments wholesome and minimally processed, just like my mom used to make for us at home.”

Barhyte’s mom and the company’s namesake, Suzie “Saucy Mama” Barhyte, also serves as the company’s “Chief Saucier,” personally creating the company’s entire collection including gourmet mustards; savory, sweet and umami finishing sauces; and attention-worthy dressings and cocktail condiments.

Starting in November 2011, Saucy Mama’s All-Natural lineup will include:

- Saucy Mama Apricot Ginger Mustard
- Saucy Mama Backyard Brat Mustard
- Saucy Mama Champagne & Honey Mustard
- Saucy Mama Chipotle Mustard
